

Fostering "Green" Culture as a Community Economic Development Strategy

The Workshop, co-sponsored by DHCD, the Metropolitan Area Planning Council, the City of Quincy and the MA Chapter of the American Planning Association, examined how promoting “Green” culture in communities can lead to support for a wide range of local sustainability initiatives, resulting in long-term savings.

November 10, 2010, Thomas Crane Library, Quincy

Fostering a Green Culture at Harvard University

by Heather Henriksen, Director, Harvard Office for Sustainability

Strategies for Success

by Colleen Soden, Director of Technical Assistance, The Green Roundtable / NEXUS

Sustainability in a Municipal Environment: the Town of Dedham

by Karen O’Connell, Esq., Economic Development Director

On the Ground, Getting it Done in Salem

by Paul Marquis, Salem Energy and Sustainability Manager

Fostering “Green” Culture brought out an enthusiastic audience of municipal officials, non-profits and consultants.